[Q18]

7. Other than relaxing government regulations and immigration guidelines, what will be necessary to revitalize the globalization of education at higher education institutions in the near future?

Which of the following is closest to your point of view about what is needed in order to establish and embed post-pandemic mobility among a number of higher education institutions around the world? (required)

(1) We will not resume international student exchange (for the time being), therefore an inter-institutional global framework is unnecessary.

(2) We only need a common understanding amongst (between) a limited number of our close institutional partners for the globalization of our education.

(3) We need common understandings amongst universities in own countries or regions first, then we shall start discussions internationally.

(4) When resuming student exchange globally, higher education institutions around the world need general frameworks and common understandings of post-pandemic mobility which are shared by a considerable number of institutions, including my own.
